Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 24 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cloud and rain in south, cold and brighter in north.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rain, some heavy, edging across southern areas, gap behind filling with low cloud and fog. Further rain into southwest later. Patchy rain sinking south across central areas, odd snowflake on hills. Frosty and clearer further north, snow showers for Shetland.

Saturday:
Occasional rain, some heavy, across southern areas of England and Wales; mild. Dull, damp chilly, windy zone Northern Ireland towards East Anglia. Bright and cold further north, wintry showers Shetland.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Often cloudy, with rain at times for many areas, though some sunny spells also likely. Sleet and hill snow in the north for a time on Sunday. Becoming mild everywhere.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.